«The role of university education and science in modern society:
on the occasion of 100th anniversary of the Belarusian State University»

For almost 100 years of its activity, Belarusian State University is the flagship of higher education in Belarus, the scientific and cultural center of our country. In many ways, it shapes image of modern Belarus and represents it internationally in educational and scientific spheres. This is evidenced by the fact that BSU constantly takes on of leading positions in world rankings of higher education institutions. The university's high status is ensured by the use of innovative technologies in combination with decades-proven methods of educational process and scientific research. Dozens of scientific schools in the fields of natural and social sciences, humanities created under the guidance of eminent scientists over the preceding decades, which can rightfully be considered a national treasure, proves the continuity of traditions.

On the eve of the 100th anniversary, there is a need to evaluate the achievements of the Belarusian State University in educational and scientific fields, to show its role in the development of science and education in the Republic of Belarus, to identify opportunities for improving the intellectual potential for the future. It is important to comprehensively consider the role of BSU in both the European and the global scientific and educational systems.
